

ABSTRACT

Systems and methods for processing data at a handheld device are described.

The handheld device is couplable with a sensor and includes a data module to process data from the sensor. The handheld device may also include a display module to display data on a display of the handheld device and provide a user interface that allows users of the handheld device to interact with the handheld device during data acquisition.

i